Women in Mining – Northwestern Ontario

Lindsay moved to Thunder Bay from Vancouver in 2017 to join the mineral exploration team at Rio Tinto. Prior to that she worked with MMG's exploration group in Alaska and South America.

Lindsay graduated from University of Western Ontario in 2008 with an HBSc in Geology. After working with several junior exploration companies exploring for a variety of commodities in different parts of Canada she completed an MSc at the Mineral Deposit Research Unit at UBC in 2013. During this time she played a key role on the executive committee for the Society of Economic Geologists Student Chapter.

As Chair she will continue to promote WIM-NWO to expand our network to other communities in Northwestern Ontario and continue to provide support and development opportunities to enable women to further their careers and become leaders in the mining industry.
